Legislative Factors

Legislative Factors

2011

Legislation expanded access to non-family abuse

protective orders in general district courts, resulting in the number of protective order
cases in the general district courts increasing by almost 200%.

Legislation significantly
expanded the misdeme
for which DNA is to be collected. For each conviction, the clerk is required to access the L Inmate Data System (LI
to determine if a sample

2015

Legislation significantly expanded the misdemeanors for which DNA is to be collected. For each conviction, the clerk is required to access the Local Inmate Data System (LIDS) to determine if a sample has been previously taken from the defendant, and if not, prepare an order for the judge to sign ordering DNA collection.

2017

A Rule of Court and subsequent legislation placed a renewed emphasis on the availability of payment plans for persons who owe fines, costs and restitution. With this renewed emphasis, the number of such plans, the time required of clerks to process them and any associated payments has increased.

2018

Significant legislative changes to restitution have resulted in the following:

- Increased paperwork and scheduling for the clerk;
- Increased number of required hearings for which a clerk must be present in the courtroom; and
- Required reporting by the clerk to the Criminal Injuries Compensation Fund of unclaimed restitution.

Extensive statutory changes on fingerprinting included a requirement that the court (i.e., clerk) determine on each case if fingerprint information has been received from law enforcement.

The legislative creation of an eviction diversion pilot program in four localities, with an expectation that it will expand statewide, will result in additional responsibilities for clerks, both in the pilot courts and statewide.

Legislation related to bail and bondsmen has resulted in the following:

- Additional process for clerks related to a bondsman's surety capias requiring the processing of a new petition and receipting of the required deposit; and
- Increased responsibility of the clerks to notify DCJS and a bondsman's employer if a forfeited bond has not been paid as required.

New Judgeships

Judicial Planning

Effect of New Judge Survey (via email)

6/14/2019

Survey Questions

- 1. How did you prepare for the new judge?
- 2. Were there any work duties that got shifted due to the new judge's arrival?
- 3. Did dockets change and how did you cover additional court days, if any?
- 4. Were there any other unforeseen issues with integrating in a new judge in your court?

Summary of Responses (17 Respondents)

In order to prepare for a new judge, clerks are responsible for ordering and setting up equipment/robe, preparing orders and special session notices, and other administrative tasks related to bringing in a new employee. If the locality does not have the infrastructure to support a new position, meetings commence to solicit funding for more space from local officials. Additionally, scheduling and room assigning becomes a huge challenge. If a room is in the process of being prepared for a new judge but not yet ready, there are courtroom rotations. This means that the court cannot operate at capacity and take full advantage of having a new judge. In some instances, courts cannot operate at capacity because of the lack of clerks being able to sit in the courtroom.

Clerks also meet with the new judge prior to taking the bench to discuss preferences (i.e. type of cases, stationary, name plate, etc.) and those preferences have to be exacted prior to the arrival of the new judge.

One of the resounding issues related to a new judge being added without support staff is that a clerk will have to be in the court and away from his/her other duties which strains the operation. In some courts, court days doubled causing an even heavier burden on the clerks which is exacerbated when clerk's offices are already understaffed.

Clerks often donate their leave because they cannot use it or operations would be negatively impacted. Furthermore, they work over 40 hours a week with no comp time given which if given wouldn't be able to be used due to the strain on the office workforce.

There is a high turnover rate due to low wages, long hours, and overwhelming and challenging workloads (i.e. challenging customers). This turnover causes an immediate strain on office operations and longer term issues arise as new people need to be trained. Some employees quit without notice as well. Employee retention is a common concern across the group surveyed. In some courts (understaffed), courts have to close if there aren't enough staff available on a given day (i.e. medical emergency).

Judicial Planning

Effect of New Judge Survey (via email)

6/14/2019

Some courts had dockets that changed while others did not. For the ones that did change, there were shifts to accommodate a new judge's presence, preferences, and skill set.

Some unforeseen issues include wifi capabilities (new routers and extenders had to be ordered), delayed courtroom renovations, preparation of bench notes for new judges, and adjustments to working relationships between the new judge and current staff.

NEW EMPLOYEE TRAINING STANDARDS

New Employee Training Standards

The training schedule and checklists are to assist you in training and documenting the progress of new employees. This is intended to be a guideline - - not an all-inclusive training document. There are additional blocks for your use to add to the list. We hope that along with the On-Line Basic Course and one-day classroom Basic Course, you will find these checklists beneficial in the training process.

Purposes and Responsibilities of Courts

Purposes and Responsibilities of Courts

This list was developed by Judges throughout the United States to identify the courts purposes and responsibilities. So, as you look at this list, think about your daily role as it relates to each

1. To do individual justice in individual cases.

While the judge's responsibility is to review the evidence and apply the law to make a decision on the case, you play an important role in the judge's ability to make the decision. Accurate case preparation and documentation is crucial.

2. To appear to do justice in individual cases.

The court must stay neutral and show no favoritism to either party.

3. To provide a forum for resolution of legal disputes

The role of the court is to provide individuals a forum for their cases to be heard without bias. Statistics show that people care more about the opportunity to be heard than they do about the actual outcome of the case.

4. To protect citizens from arbitrary use of government power.

The same Code of Virginia that applies to the citizens of the Commonwealth, applies to the government.

5. To provide a formal record of legal status.

Even though the district courts are not a court of record, we share information with other agencies. It is extremely important that from indexing a case to finial disposition the entry and documentation are accurate.

6. To deter criminal behavior.

Deterrence is not just about the person standing before the judge, but also what the rest of the community sees in sentencing.

7. To rehabilitate persons convicted of a crime.

The court's role is to evaluate what services can be provided for an offender. The clerk's office role is to expedite the disposition to the appropriate agency who will providing these services.

8. To separate convicted persons from society.

Unfortunately, some individuals must ultimately be separated from society for the safety of others.

The above, bolded case types represent the most complicated cases before the JDR Court and require extensive training in dependency case processing. Clerks and deputy clerks play a vital role in the accurate processing of these cases. They are on the front lines in working with litigants and other agencies. Understanding the timelines and forms is a requirement in working for the court and annual training is recommended by DJS. The following areas are covered during training.

Abuse, Neglect and Foster Care Statutes

Relief of Custody and Entrustment pleadings

Case numbering and entry, and accurate coding in each case, to include case type,

hearing type, continuance codes and final disposition codes

Timeline and required hearings

Indian Child Welfare Act

Agency Narrative

Agency Description

This amendment is requesting funds for additional district court clerk positions for FY 2021 and FY 2022. Based on the Judicial System's staffing model an additional 60 FTE's are needed for FY 2021 and an additional 60 FTE's for a total of 120 FTE's for FY 2022 to meet the increasing workloads. The request is for the most critical needs in the district court clerk offices throughout the Commonwealth.

Consequences of not funding/Justification

This amendment is requesting funds for additional district court clerk positions. Based on the Judicial System's staffing model an additional 60 FTE's are needed for FY 2021 and an additional 60 FTE's for a total of 120 FTEs for FY 2022. The request is for the most "critical need" court clerk offices throughout the Commonwealth.

The most prevalent negative consequences of insufficient staff within the district court clerks' offices include: backlogs in case processing; delays in placing new cases on the docket; backlogs in accounting; closing the clerks' offices early to the public to enable processing; turnover of experienced staff due to job pressures resulting in loss of knowledgeable personnel and replacement with less skilled personnel; and higher error rates. Additional examples of problems arising from clerk's office staff not being able to process cases or administrative functions timely include:

- 1) A backlog in processing jail cards, which could result in delays in releasing individuals from jail;
- 2) Satisfied judgments not being timely processed, which could negatively impact an individual's credit, possibly delaying a major purchase such as a home or car;
- 3) Garnishments not released affect individuals' paychecks as money continues to be deducted;
- 4) Backlogs in accounting delay collection of fines and costs thereby affecting Commonwealth and local revenues;
- 5) Increases in non-English speaking persons requires a greater time commitment from clerks' offices to locate interpreters, with such need occurring in both urban and rural areas, and which can result in delay of the scheduled case if an interpreter is not timely found; and
- 6) Reduction in the public's trust and confidence in the Judicial System when such delays negatively impact their lives and/or ability to access the courts in a timely matter;

Alternatives considered (must list at least one)

The court system is continuously enhancing automation in order to more efficiently address workload and customer service issues. The system has considered alternatives if enough staffing cannot be obtained. One option is to reduce services, such as to have fewer hours open for public service so that more personnel time can be focused on case processing. Another option is to request personnel from individual localities. In 1973, however, local courts became the unified State district court system, and the State assumed responsibility for district court system personnel funding. Therefore, there is no management or public policy reason that localities should fund state employee positions.

Explanations and Methodologies

The court system determines the number of additional personnel needed by using a Staffing Model. The Staffing Model analyzes three criteria: workload, administrative responsibilities, and subjective criteria. Only the workload and administrative portions of the Model were used in preparing this budget request.

Through intensive on-site studies, weights in the form of minutes have been determined for each of the 19 case types captured in the District Court Statistical System. The weights represent the average time required to process each of the representative cases from the time it enters the court system until it is concluded. These weights measure only the tasks associated specifically with a case, such as: processing summons or warrants, preparing the docket, court associated functions (attend court, update automated system, assess fines/costs, process jail card), appeals, enforcement actions on unpaid fines and costs, and processing continuances.

The second aspect of the Staffing Model addresses time spent on administrative functions. This measures the amount of time spent on activities that are not associated with any one individual case, such as answering general inquiries, tax set-off, accounting, court appointed counsel, secretarial support, involuntary commitment processing, obtaining substitute judges. The administrative factor of ".37" means that for every hour spent in the clerk's office 22 minutes is needed to perform administrative tasks. This finding was consistent with other states' courts. The Staffing Model calculates the time required to complete the workload resulting from case filings and administrative responsibilities. Computing the number of employees required is a simple matter of dividing the Staffing Model time requirement by the annual work time per employee. The court system's calculation is based on a 40-hour workweek for full-time personnel reduced by holidays and average leave time as well as a little less than one day per month of training time per employee. The 10 days was determined through consideration of the annual conferences, regional trainings, CLE requirements, new employee orientations of one to two weeks, and office staff meetings and training sessions. The system's intent is to place a very high priority on training and performance management and ensure time for its inclusion in each clerk's management planning. In order to provide services to all citizens and residents the Code of Virginia requires that each locality have a court. Keeping offices open for public service 40 hours each week, even if the caseload volume by itself does not support a 40-hour workload, requires at least minimal staffing for each office. The minimum staffing level has been determined to be 2.0 FTE and is a change from the previous 1.2 FTE. Maintaining a clerk's office with only one full time employee has created inefficiencies. With two (2) employees the clerks' offices will be staffed to man the courtroom, ensure phones are answered, the public is served and fines and costs collected. In finalizing its budget request, the Committee on District Courts (CDC) evaluates each court individually considering not only the objective criteria of the Staffing Model but also the staffing levels local managers believe they need.
